Roskos and Christie (2004) believe that as children engage in play, they are using their memories to assist to connect their play to pre-literacy skills such as naming and symbolic thought. Children recall their past play experiences and create new meanings each time they play. (as cited in Tsao, 2008, p.518).

Developing Literacy

Children's language and literacy development takes place in everyday activities accompanied by interesting talk with lots of new vocabulary words. Although the development of literacy skills is different from the development of language, it is inter-related. Literacy is about more than knowing letters and
